A British Ship in Trouble. PORTLAND, November 13th.—The danger to the British ship Nebo was much greater than indicated by the meager dispatch a few days ago. Shortly after being towed to sea a terrific gale took away her foremast and jibboom. She became unmanageable, and drifted northward to Shoalwater Bay. The next morning the tug Pioneer went out to bring in the Sea Nymph, and was signaled to steam to Shealwater Bay, as the Nebo had signaled, "Send us a tug, or we are lost," Notwithstanding the very heavy sea, the Pioneer got a hawser to the Nebo and towed her about eighteen hours out of sight of land, and the ship put about to San Francisco. The next day the Pioneer returned to Astoria, got a supply of coal and started to find the Nebo, for the purpose of towing her to San Francisco for repairs. Up to last night neither ship nor tug had been heard

THE DEMOCRATS AND THE TARIFF. On the 7th instant the New York World bserved, "to day's work, without question, secures the next House of Representatives to the Democrats." It then, pesking of the tariff, proceeded: "The most urgent question of 'practical pol-'itics' now presented is whether the party will have the sense and courage to take a positive stand on the question upon which the next election to the Presidency is probably to be decided-upon 'a question on which, at any rate, they have a chance to take the side of right and reason, and the certainty that the country will come round to that 'side-or whether they will confine themselves to a fruitless and frivolous opposi-'tion." Yesterday we published among our dispatches the substance of an interview with Congressman Randall on the same subject. Mr. Randall is an exponent of Democratic Protectionism, but he possesses great influence in his party, and if he is elected Speaker of the House, his views will no doubt be reflected largely in the composition of the committees, as also in the party policy. He is of course compelled to recognize the demand for reduced ting that a protective tariff with Protection as its main object, is not justified. He thinks, however, that by maintaining vesterday morning. The tendency of the market is the tariff and calling it a revenue tariff with incidental protection, all difficulties may be got over. His true bias appears in his approval of the entire abolition of the Internal Revenue taxes: a measure which would render any useful modification of the tariff impracticable, since it would throw the whole burden of the revenue upon that system. This is the favorite Protectionist device at present, and it must be concluded that Mr. Randall, and such Democratic Congressmen as think with him, will advocate it in the

So long as the Internal Revenue taxes remain it will be open to the tariff reformers to urge radical and steamer. revision of the tariff. But with a reduction of $70,000,000 a year in the revenue taxes, they think tariff revision must be abandoned. A JUDICIOUS RESOLUTION. We are constrained to approve the resolution of the San Francisco Democratic leaders and successful candidates, to abstain from all public rejoicings over their recent successes. Such a resolution really indicates better judgment than the Democrats have been in the habit of exhibiting. For a public ratification meeting, or procession, or anything of that kind, would have involved a foolish and indeed puerile ignoring of the fact that the late elections do not indicate any access of confidence in the Democracy, but simply prove the determination of the people to punish Republican demagogism and "Bossism." In this State it is a notorious truth that the success of the Democratic ticket was the work of Republican votes, and to have treated such a victory as in any sense a partisan success would have been to mar the Democratic opportunity at the very outset. The Democrats are in power,

A Euch for Government Land. WASHINGTON, November 13th -Inspector Holcomb, in his report to the General Land Office, gives an interesting account of the establishment of the Land Office at Hurov, Dakota, to the Secretary. October 9th (Monday) was set for the office to open, and at 3 o'clock that morning over 500 attorneys assembled in front of the office in readiness for business. At 9 o'clock, when the doors opened, there was such a rush that the doors and windows were broken, and several fights surred in the eagerness to file applications first. The Receiver was compelled to make the announcement that all applications would be regarded as having been filed simultaneously. Over $9,000 worth of land was sold for cash the first day. One hundred thousand acres were entered, and that, with its protests and applications, it was the largest day's work perhaps ever done at any Land Office in this country. however they got there, and whether Melville's Narrative Continued. they shall remain in power depends upon

On this occasion, however, he had, in running with the storm and sea, gotten ahead. He saw De Long making signals to them to stop, and he attempted to do so, lowering the sails of the boat. This, however, caused the waves to dash in. De Long made another gesture, which he understood to mean go on, and not risk swamping the boat by stopping. He therefore hoisted the sails, and soon passed out of sight of the other boats, and never saw any of the occupants sgain until he found De Long's party dead on the Lens Delta. He remarked to Danenhower, who sat beside him, that he thought they ought to heave to and wait for the others to come up, Danenhower replied, "Yes, Melville; shought to have been hove to before this. > CHICAGO, November 13th .- The Times will publish a story in the morning, to the effect that the Chinese dwarf Cha Wab, 45 years old and 44 inches high, is about to marry a young woman aged 19, who gives the name of annie Coleman, who is said to be of well-to do Catholic parents in New York. The story as told is that the girl saw Che Wah on exhibition in New York, and fell violently in love with him, the attachment being reciprocated Her parents objected, and none of the Cath-olic priests in New York would marry them. The Buddhist dwarf has been here on exhibition three weeks, and the girl is here also. The priests have refused to marry them. They go next to St. Louis, and the girl says if the priests there will not marry them they will ask a Protestant minister to perform the ceremony. Failing in that, they will apply to a civil magistrate. The dwarf is said to be quite wealthy, and the question seems to be whether it is a case of love or lucre on the part of the girl. Bennett's New Cable Scheme. New York, November 13th .- The Sun, in its weekly review of Wall street affairs, has the following concerning James Gordon Bennett's new cable scheme: The making and laying of the cable is to cost $2,200,000, of which Bennett subscribes $1,000,000, and promises another $1,000,000 if a second cable is necessary. The total capital is to be raised to $5,000,000. The new cable will be worked in connection with the Baltimore and Ohio telegraph system, and the Herald advises the Western newspapers not to make any con-tracts with the Western Union until Bennett is ready to serve them on philanthropic prin-ciples with his new toy. But it is hard to see how Bennett can offer anything like the fa-cilities which the Western Union now gives collities which the Western Union now gives to its customers all over the Continent. Apart from that, there is some doubt in the mind-of conservative business men whether he will persist in his new "fad fad," and whether his present passion for cabling may not evaporate as his love for polo, soup kitchens, yachting and Arctic exploration has disappeared. A Dynamite Plot in Iowa. DES MOINES (Ia.), November 13th .- A pre found sensation was caused yesterday by find-ing dynamite in hazardous places at the International Distillery. In the morning a let-ter was received by W. N. Smith, one of the foremen, which read: "There are fifty pounds of dynamite in the masher. It will explode at 150° Fahrenheit, or a slight jar will explode it. Notify the men, but don't show this letter to anyone. This is no boy' plot. We mean business. If you follow in structions there will be no danger to anybody when it is taken out." Babbitt Kidd, the owner, was notified, and a search party found several cylinders of dynamite in the ingress and egress pipes of the engine. To-day the whole building was carefully gone over, and nine more packages found, weighing eight and a half ounces each. One arrest was made to-day, and warrants were issued for others. The Situation at Pensacola. Pensacola (Fia.), November 13th .- Only e new case of yellow fever was reported today. The weather, which was very warm this morning, has changed to cool this evening, with a norther blowing, and giving renewed hopes for frost. The change was ccompanied with rain. An inspection of the uarantine station was made to-day by resient physicians and several members of the Board of Health, with a view to a disc n-tinual in of the quarantine on the 15th inst. No patients are in the hospital.

Forerunner of Metcorological Disturb-RED HOUSE OBSERVATORY, PHELPS (N. A vast brilliant arch illuminated the landscape, equal to the light of the moon in its first quarter, followed by im mense streamers and waves of light, projected with startling velocity from the horizon to the zenith. Great meteorological disturbances may be expected.

Frightful Effect of an Explosion. CLEVELAND, November 13th,-About 5 o'clock this afternoon the boiler in the Forest City Iron Works exploded with terrific force, killing four men and seriously injuring four or five more. The wonder is that a larger number were not killed, as nearly 350 men were at work in the building, all under one roof, with no partitions. The boiler was eighteen feet long and forty-two inches in diameter. A large part of the roof was completely torn off, and a fragment of the boiler hurled a great distance. The cause of the explosion is not known. The killed are William Atkins, master machinist of the works; top of head blown off, both legs wrenched from the trunk and the body horribly mangled. D. Wright, from Wyandotte, looking for work; top of skull cut off as by a knife, and brains so out clean; face blackened almost beyond recognition. John Gallagher, furnaceman; skull broken across the forehead, and internal injuries. John Williams, first engineer; head smashed and body mangled. Atkins, Wright and Williams were killed instantly. Gallagher lingered three hours.

Verdict of a Coroner's Jury. Ashland (Ky), November 13th.—The Coroner's jury inquiring into the cause of death of the persons killed during the transfer of Neal and Craft from Catlettsburg to Lexington, Ky., returned a verdict, finding that deceased were killed by bullets fired from guns of the State militia guarding the prisoners Neal and Craft, and that the firing was not done in the line of their duty. The jury holds Major Allen, commander of the ops, culpable for ordering and permitting the fire.

THE IMAGINATION Lecture Last Evening by Rev. C. D.

Barrows. Rev. C. D. Barrows, of San Francisco, lectured last evening before the Ladies' Society of the Congregational Church, in the church building. His subject was "Imagination." He had a large and thoroughly appreciative audience. Mr. Barrows was on this occasion heard here for the first time. He is a young man, a very rapid speaker, and in many respects is elequent, although his delivery is marred by occasional indistinctness of propunciation, and his manner marked by not a little odd gesticulation. His command of language is very fine, the spirit of poetry Rev. C. D. Barrows, of San Francisco, lecof language is very fine, the spirit of poetry pervades his lines, and his sentences are clear candidates for the State Sentences are clear candidates are c cut and in unmistakably simple and pure English. He introduces no fereign word where an English word serves as well. He is direct, incisive and forcible. He kept the attention of his audience closely, and very frequently moved them to smiles and laughter by original wit and anecdotal relation. Only the salient points upon which he dwelt are given as indicating the character of his finished and brilliant discourse. Imagina-tion, he said, is a sort of literary pack-horse bearing many burdens not belonging to it. It is too often confounded with funcy and the object on which the faculty is exercised 179. Seventh District-Beckley 395, Smith object on which the faculty is exercised.

The readiest way to ascertain what it is, is to observe what it does. A painter looks upon a landscape, but in transferring his picture he may fill it in on the canvas with that which memory holds in her treasure-house. Memory gives him the materials for the work. tion is not a complex, but a simple faculty of our constitution. To build her magnificent structures, imagination must have materials, and these are drawn from the wealth of the mind. Without good taste and sound judgment, there may be erratic genius that will make men stare, but there it ends. Milton was cited as standing unrivaled among British poets for brilliancy of imagination. The power of fancy depends entirely on chains of analogy, and never reaches the lofty plane at-tai...d by her sister imagination. He quoted from Scott a striking illustration of the dis-tinction between fancy and imagination. Imagination revels in loftier atmospheres than fancy aspires to. The latter deals in the placid and tranquil; the former with the awful and the grand. Fancy delights to gather the lilies of the field and weave them into garlands for beauty's brow; imagination stands on the mountain top, plays amidst the thunder and weaves her garlands from the lightning for the storm king's ands from the lightning for the storm king's brow. Wit is like the meteor in the heavens brow. Wit is use the metco in the heavens —rare and brilliant. Faucy may elaborate her pictures; wit, never. He gave many illustrations of true wit, and pointed out the characteristics by which it is to be known, and illustrated combinations of wit, fancy and imagination. The imagination should be judiciously cultivated. It is not incompatiwith a high order of rippings of fancy must not be mistaken for the tread of imagination, nor the frippery of bombast be received as evidence of this lofty There can be no true poetry without imagination. As to its uses, it has a and without it eloquence is impossible. It gives beauty to naked abstractions, and forces nature into service to command mage to the grandeur of noble thought. the great power of eloquence is conor that is, but men must be told what it is John Huliz, 4. like. As nature exceeds art, by just so much does the faculty of imagination exceed the power of language. It has a close relation to human happiness. In the heart dwells the capacity for happiness, and its development depends upon the faculty of imagina-tion. Properly educated, it is the luxury of the intellect, but too much in-dulged in, it becomes the poison of the mind. Indulged in too freely it creates a morbid appetite in its poor victim, who comes to a state where he is satisfied with nothing real, ergbys nothing fictitious, and it then destroys that mental balance which is one of the conditions of happiness. It is a shame that there are public libraries crowded with imaginative works; a shame that such are too much sought after, for they lead to wretchedness and mental incapacity. It is a shame that parents will permit their children to indulge in such works to their moral destruction. Imagination starts many a pain that had no existence, and invites many a [New York Clipper.] About the most prominent man in pugilistic circles in this country at the present time is Arthur Chambers, the recognized light-weight champion of America, and who before he came to the United States was light-weight champion of England. Mr. Chambers is the ero of a number of hard-fought battles in England and America, and his opponents have all been prominent pugilistic lights. He is now proprietor of the Champion's Rest, at Ridge avenue and Wood street. Philadelphia, which establishment is a rendezvous for all the leading sporting characters of the country. Mr. Chambers was born in Salford, near Man-chester, England, on December 3, 1847, and after some service in the British Navy he commenced his pugilistic career when but 17 years of age. His first fight in England was with Arthur Webb, at Mole Hill, near Manchester, on October 1, 1864, whom he easily defeated. His subsequent battles in England were as follows: On November 8, 1865, he fought the famous Ned. Evans, at Flouch, near Hazelhead Bridge, and conquered him after a terrible struggle. fight was going on the authorities interfered, and the two men met the next day at Chat Moss, when Chambers was defeated for the first time, after a fearful battle of sixty-three rounds, lasting over three hours. Late in the fall of that year he was matched against fall of that year he was matched against Dick Goodwin, alias "Spring-heeled Dick," at Acton Bridge, and after 105 rounds had at Acton Bridge, and after 105 rounds had been fought the fight ended in a draw. Chambers then went to London, where the well-known Billy Shaw took him in hand, and he was pitted against Jim Finch, in the London District, May 21, 1867, and the prizemore was divided. He then fought and defeated in succession Harry Kimberley, Ned Evans, Tom Scattergood and some of his old oppinents. Mr. Chambers arrived in this country at New York on March 31, 1871, and brought with him the Eaglish silver prizebelt, inscribed: "Lightweight Champion's Belt, presented to Arthur Chambers by his backers and friends in consideration of his manly conduct, both in and out of the prizering, pravious to his departure for America, February 24, 1871; Victoria Music Hall, Manchester." Soon after his arrival in New York Chambers issued repeated challenges, York Chambers issued repeated challenges, and at last a match was arranged between him and the celebrated Billy Edwards. This great fight was for $1,000 a side, and took place on an island in Canada, en September 4, 1872. The battle was a tremendous one, and after an hour's display of skill and pluck on both sides, the fight was awarded to Chambers on a claim of foul. He then fought Seddons, and won the fight in one hour and forty minutes. Chambers' last and greatest fight was with the renowned John H. Clark, in Canade, on March 27, 1879, for the light-weight championship of America and $2 900. The fight was one of the most memorable ones in the annals of pugilism, consisting of 137 rounds, and lasting two hours and twenty minutes. It was fairly won by Chambers, and that great victory made him light-weight champion of America. The writer was sitting in the Champion's the champion, who is as pleasant a gentleman socially as he is fiery and invulnerable in the prize-ring. I then said: "Tell me of some prominent men in your line of business who speak favorably of St. Jacobs Oil." He replied: "Well, there's Billy Edwards, whom I fought, to begin with." I said: "Where can I see him?" Chambers replied: "He is in New York, and I suppose you can easily find a well-known man like him." I remarked that I had no immediate business to take me to New York, when Chambers said: "Billy New York, when Chambers said: "Billy Edwards and I are good friends, and I often see him, and I know that he uses St. Jacobs Oil whenever he has any accidental sprains or other kind of pains. He uses that remedy about the same as I de, and it often does him Shortly after the above chat the champion introduced me to Dan Crutchley, the ex-light-weight champion, who will shortly leave for England, and who recently had a grand complimentary entertainment at the Champion's Rest. This celebrated pugilist has fought twenty-one battles in the English prize-ring, and among the noted pugilists he encountered were Toney Freeman, Dick Longmore, Fred. Fisher, Billy Humpage, Posh Price, Tom Lane, Nobby Wall, George Probert, Ike Atkins, Kenney the Shoeblack and others. Mr. Crutchley is a thorough-bred English pugilist, and very gentlemanly personally. He gave as his opinion that there was nothing in the world that could compare to St. Jacobs Oil for rheumatic affictions, and sporting men generally. He considered it almost indispensable when a man went into training. He was not sure that St. Jacobs Oil could be obtained in the Oid Country, but to make sure to have it on hand he intended prize-ring, and among the noted pugilists he encountered were Toney Freeman, Dick to make sure to have it on hand he intended to take a quantity with him when he sailed. I happened to say that I understood nearly all pugilists when in training, as well as athletes generally, used St. Jacobs Oil, the Great German Remedy for rheumatism, very freely, and that it was very popular among sporting men. Mr. Chambers said: "I know I use St. Jacobs Oil, and would not be without it on any account. I tell you, men in my profession find St. Jacobs Oil of the biggest kind of help to them. We are all subject to spraine, bruises, etc., and that liniment gives more speedy relief than anything else. I often have attacks in my shoulders, knees and other parts of my body, either sprains or results of colds, and I never think of using any other but St. Jacobs Oil, for it does me good at once. Why, I have got a quantity of it up stairs now, and I can knock spots out of any pain I get by rubbing myself with it.

AMONG THE PUGILISTS.
